

ANDIAMO – FENTON

RESTAURANT AND BAR WITH
PRIVATE DINING ROOM

FUN ARCHITECTURE

CASE STUDY

A Matter of Good Taste

Andiamo – Fenton is a stunning restaurant anchoring the entire ground floor of the FUNchitecture-designed Horizon Building.

The restaurant is stylish and chic, yet timeless, featuring rich finishes and detailed architectural flourishes. Contemporary ceiling “clouds” are accentuated by graphic, geometric wood cutouts. FUNtabulous custom-designed chandeliers over the bar and four season patio dining room are spectacular, showcasing waved shapes and hand blown glass sconces illuminated by Edison-style LED bulbs. Wood floors throughout the restaurant provide a sense of warmth and lead the eye to the “wine wall” that separates the private dining area from the rest of the restaurant.

Continued on back...

ANDIAMO – FENTON

RESTAURANT AND BAR WITH
PRIVATE DINING ROOM

FUN ARCHITECTURE

CASE STUDY

Continued from front...

The four season room is surrounded by three walls of glass and nestled 18 inches below the sidewalk grade for a cozy and intimate dining experience. Two of the glass walls open accordian-style to provide an al fresco dining experience during warm weather months.

The private dining area features two walls of glass looking out to downtown Fenton, combined with a third mirrored wall that converts to television screens for corporate presentations and private parties. The room is lit via hidden LED cove lighting in a circular coffered ceiling. The fourth wall is the wine wall – a completely temperature and humidity controlled glass chamber housing floor-to-ceiling bottles from Andiamo’s extensive wine collection. This wall provides a visual barrier of privacy for the private dining room and serves as an illuminated focal feature for the restaurant’s main dining area.

A 30-foot commercial kitchen hood serves as a functional showpiece in the dazzling stainless steel and tile kitchen. The pizza oven is the main focal point behind the bar, which features timeless and classic millwork. The entire Andiamo – Fenton cosmopolitan vibe emits an element of sophisticated and casual FUN!

